Mike Tyson, a figure of staggering complexity and iconic impact on the world stage, has been a friend since 1985 when he came by the set of THE PICK UP ARTIST to meet Robert Downey. We spent hours talking—about love, madness, crime, sports, sex, boxing, money, and death. I was left with a certainty that I would eventually want to use him in some future film. Fourteen years later, I offered Tyson a role in BLACK AND WHITE which involved resisting successive, aggressive sexual overtures by both Downey and Brooke Shields, and, in another scene, the providing of advice to a Wu Tang Clan gangster on murder and its possible consequences of a life in prison. Three years later, I used Tyson again in a street scene with Neve Campbell and me in WHEN WILL I BE LOVED.

For years I have been looking for a project that would allow for a new form of presentation suggested by current radically shifting and radically impatient responses to modern life and media. I wanted to make a movie that would serve the thematic complexity and multiple layers of character and behavior by splitting the screen into separate images moving in shape, size, and rhythm, complicated by overlapping sources of dialogue and music. A full portrait film with Mike Tyson as its subject not only allowed for the exercise of that technique but actually demanded it. I approached Larry McConkey, the world master of steadicam operators and asked him to try a two-camera (both the Panasonic Genesis and Vericam) Hi-Def shoot of rapid intensity. Tyson was free, willing, and—after years of vaguely planning such an enterprise—eager.

The week passed with the expected, unexpected twists from both Tyson and McConkey. I then set out on an eight month editorial journey into the unknown with Aaron Yanes, a relative newcomer to editing. Together—and then later with Skip Lievsey and Byron Wilson, the best sound engineering team in the universe, as well as the input of producer Damon Bingham, we all forged something very close to what I had been dreaming of. It will be a blessing indeed if others share the excitement as well.

SYNOPSIS

Tyson is a acclaimed indie director James Toback's stylistically inventive portrait of a mesmerizing Mike Tyson. Toback allows Tyson to reveal himself without inhibition and with eloquence and a pervasive vulnerability. Through a mixture of original interviews and archival footage and photographs, a startlingly complex, fully-rounded human being emerges. The film ranges from Tyson’s earliest memories of growing up on the mean streets of Brooklyn through his entry into the world of boxing, to his rollercoaster ride in the funhouse of worldwide fame and fortunes won and lost. It is the story of a legendary and uniquely controversial international athletic icon, a figure conjuring radical questions of race and class. In its depiction of a man rising from the most debased circumstances to unlimited heights, destroyed by his own hubris, TYSON emerges as a modern day version of classic Greek tragedy.

JAMES TOBACK - Director

James Toback is an American screenwriter and film director whose cinematic explorations of sports, crime, sex and the complex vagaries of human relationships have resulted in a host of provocative, seminal and celebrated films.

After graduating from Harvard, Toback intended to become a novelist but turned to journalism. Given an assignment for an article in Esquire on football legend Jim Brown, Toback moved into Brown’s Hollywood mansion and ended up writing an autobiographical memoir JIM: THE AUTHOR’S SELF-CENTERED MEMOIR OF THE GREAT JIM BROWN. In 1974, his semi-autobiographical original screenplay THE GAMBLER was directed by British filmmaker Karel Reisz and starred James Caan as Axel Freed, an English professor and death-obsessed compulsive gambler.

Toback used the experience on the THE GAMBLER as preparation for his directorial debut FINGERS, a dark, psychological drama starring Harvey Keitel. It was remade twenty-eight years later as THE BEAT THAT MY HEART SKIPPED by Jacques Audiard. FINGERS, remains the only original American movie ever to be remade as a French film and was shown at the 2008 Cannes Film Festival.

Toback followed FINGERS with LOVE AND MONEY (1982), which marked legendary Hollywood director King Vidor’s acting debut at the age of eighty. During the 1980s, Toback also wrote and directed EXPOSED (1983) with Nastassia Kinski, Rudolf Nureyev, Harvey Keitel, Bibi Andersen, and Pierre Clementi. The film was photographed by New Wave cinematographer Henri Decae and scored by New Wave composer Georges Delerue. He also wrote and directed THE PICK-UP ARTIST (1987) with Robert Downey Jr., Molly Ringwald, Harvey Keitel, and Dennis Hopper.

In 1989, Toback created THE BIG BANG, a documentary exploring the connections among orgasm, sex, love, madness, murder, crime, death, and the origin and fate of the cosmos. It featured a philosopher nun, an Auschwitz survivor, a gangster, a cosmologist, a jazz saxophonist, a basketball star, a concert violinist, and two six-year-old children. In 1991, Barry Levinson directed Toback’s original screenplay BUGSY, produced by Warren Beatty who also starred as the infamous gangster. The film co-starred Harvey Keitel as Mickey Cohen, Ben Kingsley as Meyer Lansky, and Annette Bening as Virginia Hill. BUGSY won the Golden Globe for Best Picture and was nominated for ten Academy Awards, including Best Original Screenplay. Toback won the Los Angeles Film Critics’ Award for Best Original Screenplay and a similar award from the readers of Premiere Magazine.

More recently, Toback wrote and directed TWO GIRLS AND A GUY, a comic rumination on the incompatibility of romantic monogamy and sexual curiosity. It starred Robert Downey, Jr., Heather Graham and Natasha Gregson Wagner as friends and lovers. He then wrote and directed BLACK AND WHITE (made in collaboration with Power, Raekwan and Method Man of Wu-Tang Clan). The film also starred Robert Downey Jr., Ben Stiller, Mike Tyson, Claudia Schiffer, Brooke Shields, Jared Leto, Bijou Phillips, Elijah Wood, Toback himself, and Allan Houston. It explores the phenomenon of hip hop from the inside, and its corollary phenomena: identity, music, madness, murder, drugs, crime, race and sex. He also wrote and directed the semiautobiographical HARVARD MAN, starring Adrien Grenier, and WHEN WILL I BE LOVED, an exploration of the psyche and sexuality of a driven, curious, articulate young woman, Vera, played by Neve Campbell. Dominic Chianese and Fred Weller portray men who imagine themselves - with fatal consequences - to be capable of toying with Vera when they are in fact in well over their heads.

In 2006, documentary filmmaker Nicolas Jarecki directed THE OUTSIDER, a cinematic excursion into Toback’s world, which includes excerpts from much of his work, visual observation of his directing WHEN WILL I BE LOVED, and self-revelatory as well as revelatory interviews with Norman Mailer, Robert Downey Jr, Mike Tyson, Brooke Shields, Neve Campbell, Brett Ratner, ICM chairman Jeff Berg, Bijou Phillips, Roger Ebert, former Sony chairman John Calley, Jim Brown, Woody Allen, Barry Levinson, Power of Wu-Tang Clan, and Harvey Keitel. Toback has been a subject of retrospective tributes at Deauville, Torino, San Francisco, New York among other cities.

In 2007, Toback directed TYSON, a documentary portrait of the unique, fascinating, and endlessly provocative former heavyweight champion. The film, to be released in 2009, has already received strong praise in Le Monde from its noted film critic Samuel Blumenfeld. TYSON was an Official Selection at the 2008 Cannes Film Festival where it was awarded the LE K.O. prize by the Un Certain Regard jury. TYSON was also an Official Selection at the 2009 Sundance Film Festival.
SALAAM REMI - Original Music

Salaam Remi is a prolific and eclectic music producer whose influences range from rap to R&B, from England to Senegal. He segued into the movies in 2004 when he executive produced the soundtrack for Brett Ratner's INTO THE SUNSET, which introduced him to the director and to composer Lalo Schifrin. He went on to become the music supervisor on Ratner's RUSH HOUR 3, starring Chris Tucker and Jackie Chan. Working alongside Schifrin, Remi designed the comedic kung-pao sequences, among other things.

Born in Queens, New York, Remi is part of a profoundly musical family - even his name is musical. His father, Van Gibbs, a well-regarded music industry producer and musician, named him Salaam, the Arabic word for peace and his middle name, Remi was derived from the second and third tones of the octave scale (Do Re Mi...). Remi received his first drum kit from Elvin Jones, the legendary jazz drummer who played with the John Coltrane Quartet and so began his lifelong passion for timing and rhythm.

By his teenage years, the prodigy would add bass, keyboard, guitar, and percussion to his repertoire. Remi’s experience creating hip-hop remixes and productions for reggae artists Supercat, Ini Kamoze, Shabba Ranks, and Patra in the early 90s would lead to his production on The Fugees album THE SCORE, the highest selling hip-hop album of all-time, selling over 20 million copies worldwide.

He went on to remix and produce songs for The Fugees, NAS, Ludacris, Wyclef Jean, Toni Braxton, Santana, Sade, Sting (featuring Mary J. Blige), Lauren Hill, Jurassic Five, Doug E. Fresh, Biz Markie, and Chrisette Michele. He has also created tracks for Kevin Lyttle, Supercat, Ini Kamoze, Jamiroquai, Senegalese hip-hop band Positive Black Soul, and most recently, U.K. vocalist Amy Winehouse. Remi produced ten songs on Winehouse’s debut, FRANK, released in 2003. The critically acclaimed single, STRONGER THAN ME, which he co-wrote with Winehouse, went on to win the coveted Ivor Novello Award for Contemporary Song Of The Year.

The work Remi did on FRANK led to songwriting and production on her second album, BACK TO BLACK (TEARS DRY ON THEIR OWN, ADDICTED, ME AND MR. JONES, JUST FRIENDS, UNHOLY WAR) and helped catapult Winehouse into the spotlight, to become one of the top music stories of 2007. To date, BACK TO BLACK has since sold more than three million copies worldwide.

The camaraderie between Salaam and NAS has resulted in their collaboration on five albums. In addition to executive producing the double CD, STREETS DISCIPLE, Salaam has also produced tracks on STILLMATIC, GOD SON, HIP-HOP IS DEAD, and NAS' forthcoming albums, the greatest hits collection and the new solo album.
AARON YANES - Editor
Aaron Yanes’ recent credits include Sundance Grand Jury Prize winner PADRE NUESTRO directed by Christopher Zalla, and ZARIN by internationally acclaimed artist Shirin Neshat, as well as her Carnegie Hall video installation FROM A FAR OFF COUNTRY in collaboration with cellist Maya Beiser and composer Eve Beglarian.

LARRY McCONKEY - DP
The legendary Larry McConkey has been the Steadicam operator on many films, including IRONWEED, THE MOSQUITO COAST, MILLER’S CROSSING, GOODFELLAS, THE SILENCE OF THE LAMBS, RANSOM, THREE KINGS, FINDING FORRESTER, SHALLOW HAL, VANILLA SKY, THE HOURS, and KILL BILL: VOLUMES 1 & 2.

He has worked three times with Spike Lee, on MO’ BETTER BLUES, JUNGLE FEVER and THE SUMMER OF SAM, and with Brian DePalma and cinematographer Stephen H. Burum on CARLITO’S WAY, MISSION IMPOSSIBLE, SNAKE EYES and MISSION TO MARS. McConkey operated Steadicam and also served as camera operator on THE GOOD SHEPHERD and AMERICAN GANGSTER.

He moved up to second unit DP on CONFESSIONS OF A TEENAGE DRAMA QUEEN and made his debut as DP on James Toback’s WHEN WILL I BE LOVED.
